Explore stunning grounds, discover unusual plants and flowers and delve into history as you learn the captivating story of Edward Augustus Bowles; one of Britain’s most influential and innovative gardeners of his era.

E A Bowles lived in Myddelton House from 1865 – 1954 and dedicated his life to transforming the gardens into a haven for weird and wonderful flora and architectural curiosities. Watch out for the Wisteria that’s over 100 years old and bursts with brilliant blue flowers each spring. The gardens are also home to several National Collections including colourful displays of irises and crocus.

The gardens have undergone extensive restoration and refurbishment; a two year Heritage Lottery Fund project was completed in 2011 and the gardens continue to be restored and maintained in the style and ethos of Mr Bowles.

Explore more exotic plants in the restored range of glasshouses, discover the botanical residents of the ‘Lunatic Asylum’ and take a stroll through the heritage Kitchen Garden for a selection of seasonal fruit and vegetables.

But wait, there's more... Take a look at the various historical artefacts that can be found around the gardens from the old Enfield Market Cross to the two life-size lead ostriches that are nearly 300 years old! Plus, learn even more about E A Bowles and the history of the gardens in our museum.

The Kitchen Garden – Watch the Kitchen Garden flourish throughout the year and don’t forget your seasonal fruit and veg!

Bowles Tea Room – Enjoy a variety of hot and cold refreshments, cakes or a delicious cream tea and relax in our indoor or outdoor seating areas.

Enfield Market Cross – The cross dates back to 1826 and stood in Enfield Town Market Place until 1904, when it was transferred to the garden by E A Bowles.

The pond – Marvel at the view of the pond which features a stunning fountain, making it one of the garden’s highlights.

Victorian Glasshouse – Explore our plant collection in the fascinating glasshouse.

Bowles Museum – Make history come alive as you discover the compelling story of E A Bowles and his gardens.
